

New Colombia Resources' Sannabis to Work with CORPROPAZ to Develop Hemp Projects in Post Conflict Zones of Colombia

Barranquilla, Colombia, July 27, 2016 /

/ -- New Colombia Resources, Inc.

(OTC: NEWC), a Colombian company listed in the U.S., is pleased to announce that Sannabis SAS, their Medical Marijuana joint venture, will work with CORPROPAZ to develop hemp fields in 5 different areas of Colombia for a pilot program to create new hemp industries in post conflict zones. CORPROPAZ (Promotors of Peace Corporation) is a nonprofit organization whose objective is support of sustainable peace through investment in productive projects focused on vulnerable populations that result from the conflict in Colombia.

CORPROPAZ posted on their website their interest in promoting industrial hemp cultivation and their collaboration with New Colombia Resources Inc. and Sannabis SAS with an agreement expected to be signed this week. http://www.corpropaz.org/public_html/Noticias.html

The pilot program is to be planted in the coming weeks in 5 areas of Colombia with different thermal floors with the purpose of analyzing costs of production, productivity, harvest times, and in general the specific conditions for each condition of environment and soil. CORPROPAZ and Sannabis will work with titans of industry in Colombia including cement companies, paper manufactures, and clothing and apparel companies that have shown an interest in this project. New Colombia Resources believes this is a huge step in creating a sustainable hemp industry in Colombia that generates jobs in much needed areas while suppling the world with quality hemp and its byproducts. The company is in contact with major corporations in the U.S interested in importing hemp products from Colombia. This pilot program will establish price points from which to work from and provide a reliable supply chain.

Alfredo Navas, Director of CORPROPAZ, has demonstrated a clear vision of working with Sannabis and New Colombia Resources on developing hemp industries in rural areas so that ex-combatants and soldiers do not rush to the big cities after the armed conflict has ended. Without sustainable jobs in rural areas, an increase in crime in the major cities becomes a reality. With a base of 3200 hectares, CORPROPAZ is setting up a pilot project in Puerto Gaitan, Meta assembling a plant to produce bio ethanol from sweet sorghum. This culture can produce bio ethanol, electricity from burning bagasse left after the removal of alcohol, and fodder for livestock from leaf and panicle.
